(By our own correspondent No. 2).
Mr & Mrs Ion from Medicine Hat are visitors to their son and family Mr Bill Ion.

The rain Saturday night was too much for several cars and trucks, which had to be pulled into the colony by tractors. Even Mr Heyford's truck did not make it this time.

Another new car has found its way to Gem. This time it is Geo McKay who is the proud owner of a 1938 Chev. car. Good luck with the nice car, George.

The Summer Vacation Bible-school reached quite a peak last Friday when 72 pupils attended. One of the teachers who was from Arrowwood left Sunday and Miss Helen Neumann is taking her place. They are intending to hold their program on Sunday night Aug. 6.

Mr Jake Doerksen who has been training with the medical corps, is home on his embarkation leave.

Mr Pete Doerksen Jr. who went out to a school in the Brooks district to teach a Summer Bible-school, came back last Friday and left immediately for Makepeace to teach a Bible school class there.

Car Deaths Due Carbon Monoxide

Recent deaths from carbon monoxide have caused the Alberta Motor Association to issue fresh warnings to motorists to be on their guard.

In some cases, the deaths occurred as a result of driving cars with defective equipment, enabling the poisonous fumes to overcome the car occupants. A report from the

But as Canada's fighting men join the Allied forces for the knock out blow to Germany vast quantities of shells are needed and vast numbers of workers are needed to produce them. Seven thousand women and three thousand men are needed now on shell filling and shell manufacturing plants across the Dominion.

ent told of a man and wife resting death from this cause.

Each year, the toll of death from carbon monoxide could be greatly reduced by exercising particular care. The necessity of keeping a window open when starting up the car, of having the garage doors open to allow the entry of fresh air when the car engine is being warmed up, are fundamental in taking proper precautions.

There is need of warning young people of carbon monoxide dangers. Some accidents have been ascribed to lack of information concerning the dead effects of the poisonous fumes.

With the approach of the fall season, it is necessary to be more alert than at any time in the year.

Keep the car in proper operating condition, see that it is fully and efficiently checked at regular intervals and a long step will have been taken to ward off carbon monoxide.

LETTER to the EDITOR

An ominous cloud is rolling westward and as it approaches Poland and the Baltic States there can be seen the unmistakable sign of the Double Cross-the sinister symbol which has bedeviled European politics and laid the foundation of many wars. Stalin has been shooting holes in the Atlantic Charter, which, if it means anything, guarantees independence, security and territorial integrity. There are also signs that Russia is determined on territorial expansion at the expense of Poland and the Baltic States. In an attempt to placate Russia, pressure has been put on Poland and Finland to accept terms which are equivalent to unconditional surrender, and subject to the whims and vagaries of a peace conference which will be dominated by a merciless dictator. Finland is worthy of every sympathy and what Finland gets will be an augury of the peace to come.

So long as people aim to live by greed and graft, there can be no peace. When nations learn that broken promises-dishonored covenants-bad faith duplicity and injustice do not pay, and that spiritual values are more important than economic prosperity, then we shall have a better world.

MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Sonny Norman DeWine Sandahl who passed away one year ago on August 7th.

Quietly and quickly came the call. His sudden death surprised us all. A sudden change in a moment fell. And not a chance to say farewell. When alone in my sorrow and bitter tears flow.

There steals a dream of long ago. 'Tis sad but true, I know not why. The best are always first to die. You left behind many aching hearts. Who loved you most sincere. Who never did and never will. Forget you, Sonny dear.

Mother, Dad, Beverly, Ann & Le-Vine.

Russia is the hereditary enemy of Turkey which was about to join the allied bandwagon, but was scared off by the sight of Stalin in the driver's seat. That these small nations must make peace, not with the Allies, but with Russia, and must accept the innumerable demands of the Russian dictator, is an evil portend of the future. The small nations are entitled to square deal and not to become the victims of the rapacious maw of an inflexible dictator.

What a difference between the dictators of the pre-Christian Era and those of modern days. Caesar and Pericles were good examples of the benevolent dictator. They came from fine families and their power was based on justice to all. On the contrary, modern dictators have neither heart nor conscience and their crimes are appalling. Their main goal is to assassinate all who fail to fall in line. Caesar had lived in modern times, would have been a great Christian He was a great man-the greatest of all-without conceit, who dispensed justice to all alike. Had modern dictators studied the life of Julius Caesar their lives might have been a blessing instead of the reverse.

That 44 per cent. of recruits are rejected as unfit for military service indicates the declining physique of the Empire. Bad habits take their toll. The decline will continue because the children brought into the world by mothers addicted to the cigarette habit are a miserable lot. Hippocrates, who laid the foundation of medicine, made little use of drugs, and taught that the best way to avoid sickness was to lead a wholesome life, and the best way to cure sickness was to observe a proper way of life.

So long as people aim to live by greed and graft, there can be no peace. When nations learn that broken promises-dishonored covenants-bad faith duplicity and injustice do not pay, and that spiritual values are more important than economic prosperity, then we shall have a better world.

E.I.D. NOTES To set aside Grazing Areas for Farmers

A special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the E.I.D., was held on June 27th for the purpose of discussing policy in connection with grazing lands.

It was decided that certain areas in different parts of the district would be set aside as grazing reserves for sheep and cattle of irrigation farmers.

In order to be in a position to deal intelligently with the question accurate information as to the number of farmers requiring such pasture and the numbers of sheep and cattle to be accommodated is needed and steps are being taken to obtain this information. After the facts are obtained the matter will be finally dealt with.

Farmers interested in this plan should read complete details published in another column on this page and apply in writing to one of the District officials or to the EID in Brooks.

Must Apply in Writing for grazing reservation

It is the intention shortly to set aside certain areas of grazing land in the EID to be reserved for community reserve during the season of 1945 whether or not he is now a member of any grazing association must make application in writing to the head office of the District before Sept. 1st, next, stating the number of head of sheep and cattle he so wishes to pasture.

Application should be made on forms which will be provided for the purpose and which may be obtained through District officials or an application to the head office.

TENDERS WANTED
for the purchase of lands. Sealed tenders for the purchase of the following lands—

SW 14, 7-30-12-4
(commonly known as the Morrow lands near Patricia) will be received by the General Manager of the EID Brooks Alberta up to the hour of 12 noon on Tuesday Aug. 15th, 1944.

These lands are definitely classified as non-irrigable pasture lands and no water will be delivered to either parcel for irrigation.

PASSING And The PERMANENT ALASKAN Entertainment

Soldiers in Alaska seeking entertainment found quite a different type of entertainment at a missionary home. A "Social" in Alaska says: "Our Spruce Island Mission is on the route of many a blue-eyed khaki-clad visitor, and one night a young soldier came to the door looking for a musical instrument. Off on leave, his group had come to find entertainment in the village dance hall, and they received an instrument. We told him the violin had never been used in a dance hall, and as we talked we got better acquainted, and the violin was put back in its place. Then the whole group came in and filled the living room, some went to the basement to help mission boys make ice cream. The captain popped corn in the kitchen. Others told bedtime stories to the kids ready for bed. Then one slipped quietly over to the organ and presently there was heard no jazz nor war duties, but the lovely old hymns of the church, favorites which the men carried in their hearts from the home town. I thanked God for this happy time."

The General's HABIT

General Douglas MacArthur says: "Never a night goes by, be I ever so tired, but I read the Word of God before I go to bed."

CHINA'S INVITATION

An unofficial ambassador, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Bishop Chen Wen-yuan has invited the United States Protestant churches to send missionaries to peacemaking China, "not as guests, but as comrades in the gigantic spiritual and material reconstruction that the nation will face." Speaking at a recent New York meeting, he said: "China certainly needs more military equipment — but she also needs a new dynamic — the power of God."

Give Christianity a Trial

Coming as it does from an avowed agnostic philosopher, the following comment from George Bernard Shaw is very interesting: "Why not give Christianity a trial? The question seems a hopeless one after 2,000 years of resolute adherence to the cry of 'Not this man, but Barabbas.' Yet it is beginning to look as if Barabbas was a failure, in spite of his strong right hand, his victories, his empires, his millions of money, and his moralities and churches and political institutions. The moneyed, respectable, capable world has been steadily anti-Christian and Barabbas since the Crucifixion, and the specific doctrine of Jesus has not, in all that time been put into practical or general social practice."

A DEADLY WEAPON

The new robot planes are killing an average of one Britisher per plane. As the robot planes cost only about $2,000 each and require no pilots, the Germans have found one of the cheapest means of indiscriminate killing yet discovered in modern warfare. The worst feature of the matter is the tremendous possibilities of development for larger and lower and longer range robot bombs in the future.

Future Wars

There are realists in Great Britain who do not expect this war to end now. Instead they are planning against future wars even before the present war is won. According to Revelation, the former cabinet minister and present member of parliament, Leslie Hore-Belisha, has announced that Britain is buying large acreage in those reports that are overhanging by cliffs in order to build greater naval yards underground. In case of war and bombings, even battle-ships will be able to sail or be towed for repair into docks out of the reach of bombs.

Giants in those Days

The Bible says, "There were big giants in the earth in those days." Genesis 6:4. Most anthropologists, however, have pictured primitive man as a little fellow somewhere between an ape and a monkey in size. "But last week," says Time, "evidence was offered to prove Genesis correct. A Java geologist had dug up jawbones of prehistoric man bigger than the largest known apes. The discovery is hailed as the most important in anthropology in fifty years. This same geologist has also found three fossil teeth in China six times as big as a modern man's molars, which are 'definitely human.'" It is now admitted that "gigantism and massiveness may have been a normal or at least a widespread character of early mankind."

In Jap Prison Camps

American soldiers in Jap prison camps in the Philippines according to the New Testament, according to Lt. Col. Wm E Dyes, one of the three officers who escaped. In his book, Death March of Bataan, he says: "A few Testaments had been smuggled into the (prison) camp and the Red Cross had sent in a few. During the entire time I was in Japanese prisons I never saw an old Bible. In the daylight hours those little volumes were being read constantly. A lot of us embraced religion. We prayed, but I did it silently. I asked for help and for forgiveness when I felt I had transgressed or had shirked my duty as a Christian."

Who gets the Cans

Under this title, an exchange tells of two reports that were made recently. The first was from the Salvatage Committee of the War Production Board, containing the figures for the national "tin can" drive in 1943. Through the patriotic efforts of citizens all over the country, approximately 500 million pounds of waste metal was collected which according to the report "meant reclamation of tin and copper precipitation" of around two and a quarter billion individual cans.

The other report, however, was much less encouraging. It appeared in the Chicago Daily News of March 9, and said as follows. Nearly as many beer cans were to be made this year as in the last pre-war year. Paints and olive drab around a billion cans will be used for overseas shipment because they resist breakage better than bottles. So now we know who gets the cans. The breweries get them. Not for civilians, however, but for our soldier boys, many of whom would much rather have a soft drink or some good cold water like the kid who wrote his mother from the South Pacific saying, "There's plenty of cold beer to be had, but not a drop of cold water." God bless America!

SOUNDING AN ALARM

The Truth About Juvenile Delinquency is the title of an eye-opening booklet by Dan Gilbert, in which the following statements appear:

"There are twice as many girls in jail today in New York as there were at any previous time on record."

"In one Illinois city with a high school population of 4,000 more than 1,000 girls are reported to have committed delinquency."

"This is what happened since Pearl Harbor: Teen-age girls lurched into Vice Immorality 110,000 (including an estimated half million under 16 years of age)."

"Teen-age girls afflicted with social disease: 300,000. Teen-age girls subjected to abortion: 150,000."

"Teen-age girls with illegitimate offspring: 75,000. The booklet sounds an alarm. It shows that more and more for our teen-age youth and done now! There is a battle to be fought on the home front. Time lost means souls lost!"

DON'T PLAY with your TIME

I BOARDED a street car in Buffalo, and when the conductor came I asked him for the leaflet, "WHERE IS HELL." As I handed it to him he laughed and said, "You always give me one of these religious papers; I suppose you think me a very wicked fellow, but I am as good as they make them." I held up my Bible, and asked, "Do you see this book? It tells me the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. Ur' lips, That means your heart and mine. It does not sound so very good, does it?" "Oh, well," he said, "I'll read plenty of time for me to think about these things. I am young." Yes I said "but if you go into any graveyard you will see graves of all sizes." A little girl once asked her mother how old she must be before he dies. The wise mother gave her child a long piece of string and told her to go into the graveyard and measure the graves, and every time she measured it to be a yard. When she returned she came back with the string all full of knots. "Look, mother, the graves are all sizes." "Yes dear, that's just what I tell them and ages." Again the young man laughed and said, "There is plenty of time for me." On leaving the car, I said: "Remember the time is very short, and you need not go to a Christian grave and bury. JESUS DIED FOR YOU." This young man had only been a conductor six or eight weeks, but during that time I had often met him, and always given him a tract. As this was not a busy line, I often had a little talk with him and other conductors.

The next morning I travelled by the same car, but a new conductor was there. He told me that the one I had spoken to the day before, had intended going for an afternoon's pleasure, but in jumping from one car to another had missed his footing and was run over by the car and injured, so that in a few hours he died. I felt very badly, thinking he had indeed found a Christian's grave. But later in the day I was told that he had accepted the Saviour, and wished me to know that he was going to a Christian's grave. I went to his home and as I looked on that young man's dead face I could not help thinking what an awful warning to any one who thinks there is "plenty of time yet."

Are you going to a Christian's grave? If you are not converted to God if you are not "born again" you are on the broad road that leads to eternal perdition. Hurry up then, but there is no time to lose. God's Word declares, "Because there is

From Sinai To Calvary

A thrilling story of a Jewish youngster who was taught to hate Jesus and how he became inspired of that a believer in Christ. Related by himself.

"I did not think you would do that. You seemed a gentleman. But I understand, my friend, and again I am asking you to accept this book from me from my very heart, and promise me to read it. You see, a gentleman, a real gentleman, even though he entertains different opinions, would not do such things in the dark ages and burn books. Today, people read them, and if they do not agree, they do not use their fists. But they do not burn books and they do not throw them angrily on the floor. I believe in you and know that you are a gentleman."

I felt ashamed of myself. The woman conquered me; convinced me that I was guilty of an unkind act, the act of a bigot. I felt the blood rush to my face and I was terribly embarrassed. I accepted the book, and without a word, tucked it into my pocket, murmured some apologies, accepted the hand she offered and departed.

As I glanced back to look for Braunstein, I saw him deposit the book which was offered to him on one of the chairs and leave it there. He would not take his copy with him.

Anxiously, I kept peering behind me to see if anyone followed me to exert some money out of me, as a last attempt for I still believed that there was something hidden behind all that generosity, but no one followed.

"It is one of those missionary places, Streiboff," Braunstein said to me. "They convert Jews into Christians and make lots of money out of it. What fools these Jews are to go there and make themselves objects for money-making. What a racket! And what says those Christians are to pay money for the baptisms of Jews?"

With a parting warning that I was not to let it appear at that meeting of the Russian Circle that evening, he left me and I went to see my sister.

CHAPTER 13

Of all my sisters and relations, my sister Cecilia is the most "Zionist." That is, she is the most orthodox. I remember once buying a chicken and asking her to cook it before my train was leaving. The chicken had to go to a rabbi to be killed; had to be dressed in a certain fashion, prescribed by a Jewish dietary law, had to stand in the water before cooking for two so-called hours, covered with salt and then cooked. I had no time to wait the two hours and argued that only one hour was sufficient and that even mother never had meat soaking in salt water for more than an hour before cooking. To all this she gave no heed.

Finally, "Listen, my brother, if you want to have this chicken my way, all right. Otherwise go ahead with, beware lest He take thee away with His stroke, then a great ransom cannot deliver thee." God loves you, and is willing to be gracious. He so loved you as to give His beloved, Son to die in your stead, that you might not perish but have everlasting life (John 3:16). Through simple faith in the Gospel of God's grace, you will gain from death into life, from darkness into light (John 8:12). Why not now, have the matter of your eternal destiny settled now.

and cook it yourself: your own way, but remember, all the vessels and silverware you use, I will consider unclean and you must take them with you as I would not want in cooking the chicken."

"And thus it was. I could not wait two hours for that chicken to stay in saltwater as per law, but cooked the chicken. And even though that chicken was killed by the rabbi; and was in the salt-water for one whole hour; and just because it did not stay in the salt-water two hours, when the chicken was ready to be cut up, ready for luncheon in the train. I had to take with me the kettle in which it was cooked, the knife with which I carved it, the spoon with which I tasted it and the fork with which I lifted it. When I reached the train and we came to a convenient place, I threw all of it out of the train window and only kept the chicken."

I am telling this little story so that my readers may understand the extreme to which my sister Cecilia went to fulfill what she believed to be her religious duty and devotion.

She was my older sister to whom I went every second Sunday afternoon to spend a few hours.

When I reached there the afternoon of my visit to the Jewish mission I threw myself wearily on a couch and pulling out the New Testament, I showed it to her and told her of the curious meeting and all that I had seen and heard there.

"Let me see this book," she said suddenly.

I handed it over to her. She looked at it, turning over a few pages, then turned back to look at the fly leaf. There she read in German, "Das Neue Testament, Unser Herr Jesus Christus, Autorisierte Uebersetzung von Martin Luther."

She no more than glanced at it, when the expression of her face changed. It seemed as though all the blood in her veins rushed pell mell to her face. Rubbed, enraged beyond control, she tried to tear the entire volume with her mad pull, and failing in that attempt, she tore out a handful of pages, then another handful and another, until she tore it to bits.

Remembering my promise to Miss Bunte, that I would read the book and return to let her what I thought of it, I tried to stop her from destroying it, but this made her worse, and not being able to tear the binding she threw it to the floor and stamping on it with her feet as though she was sleeping on a poisonous snake to kill it. I have never seen anyone in such a rage.

When she calmed down, she gathered all the pieces and threw them into the fire.

Then she washed her hands, came back where I was, took my hand in hers and like a different person than a few minutes before she spoke to me, kindly, pleadingly.

"Abraham, my dear little brother, listen to me, I am older than you, and always loved you. And besides, I am taking your mother's place here and you must mind me. This book was the Christian book of religion about him whose name I must not mention. Your bringing this book into my house will cause me to purify and cleanse it from the uncleanness which it brought in. I will also give some to the poor and ask God to forgive me my sin for having touched it. The people you saw are renegades, apostates and outcast of Israel. They have betrayed our people by accepting a religion which has always been the cause of bitter persecution of our people. And why did they do it? For money. That's all. They have sold their souls and their salvation and knowing in their hearts that they were joining the camp of their enemies, enemies of their own race and people, they accepted money and became baptized. The people of that mission have made lots of money through these baptisms. There are many Christians who think it is a 'Mitzvah' (blessing) to turn a Jew into a Christian, and they pay a large sum for every Jewish baptism. And that is where you were. They want to use you, too, to make money with. You are to be their next victim. What do they care if through your baptism, you will lose all your friends and relations?"

SHORT ANIMAL STORIES

BULLFROG

A fisherman near the mouth of the Blanche River, P.Q., was surprised last month to see a large bullfrog snap up and swallow two ducklings. He killed the frog and found that it was a foot long. Later it was brought to the Wildlife Division of the National Parks Bureau in Ottawa, where the contents of its stomach were examined revealing not only the two ducklings each of which were five inches long but a full-grown meadow mouse.

Various naturalists have observed that when meadow mice become very common they occasionally form part of the diet of large bullfrogs. Young ducklings too, apparently are regarded as tasty morsels by these carnivorous amphibians, but it is doubtful that many are destroyed in this way. Ducklings grow rapidly and at five days of age would be too large for the biggest bullfrog to swallow.

SEA-GULL

Another fisherman, a member of the crew of the schooner "Alaska" recently caught a sea-gull on his trawl line, and when he hauled it into his boat, discovered that it was wearing an aluminum leg-band. It was found that the bird was an Atlantic Kittiwake which was banded in Iceland on May 27, 1938.

KITTIWAKE

Kittiwakes nest in Canada's Arctic, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and on the coast of Newfoundland. They are also found along the coasts of the Maritime Provinces in Fall and Winter often keeping well off shore. This banding record has thrown additional needed light on the migratory habits of Kittiwakes.

FARM HEN

A Nova Scotia farmer recently missed one of his hens. Whether she had been killed or carried off by some predator he did not know. After an absence of three weeks or so the hen returned to the kitchen door followed by a flock of nine sturdy young wild ducks.

What actually happened no one knows, but several possibilities present themselves, the most likely one being that the hen appropriated the nest of a wild duck and, being in the mood for hatching, retained it by forceful means, or otherwise. Perhaps the mither duck had met her death just after having finished laying the hen submitted upon the death of the psychological moment and, being in a "broody" state, decided to carry on. Perhaps some reader has a better theory to explain this unusual occurrence.

BEAR

Many more such stories could be told of strange doings in the animal and bird kingdom. There was the deer in Prince Albert who acquired the habit of chewing tobacco and would follow teamsters for miles in the hope of getting a hand out; the moose bear in Jasper who regularly paraded her four cubs down the main street in Jasper to the railway station to the delight of residents and tourists alike.

Skeena Road

Opening Soon

Opening of the New Skeena highway is scheduled for Aug. 17, according to word that has been received from the B. C. authorities.

The function, first scheduled for Aug. 12 at Terrace, B. C. was postponed.

This new road is of interest to Alberta motorists as it runs to Prince Rupert and links with Prince George and Vancouver. When the Jasper to Prince George road is completed, the highway will provide a new outlet to the Pacific from Alberta.

Some heavy rock work was necessary on the Skeena road. The route runs through a region that is rich in scenic interest. It now will form a valuable link in the western system of tourist highways that should be ready for the post-war tourist traffic.

HAY PRICES GO UP

Figured with a succession of fine warm days, western farmers have been active this week handling the heavy hay crops. There are complaints of conditions in some areas, particularly in the south, but on the whole the general outlook is regarded as good.

Loose hay from the new cutting is arriving in buyers' hands in increasing volume. The open market reported 4 loads of new upland handled Thursday with a small amount of broome. Most of this was from the Cochrane district. Quality is described as very good. Stockyard report movement of some hundred tons of hay from the windrow and it is clear that some districts have excellent crops.

DO YOU NEED CASH

TO FINANCE FARM OPERATIONS?

LOANS are readily available at The Royal Bank of Canada to any responsible farmer in need of ready cash to finance farm operations. Such loans are continually being made by this bank for the purchase of seed and fertilizer, livestock, farm equipment, breeder cattle, to meet seasonal labour costs and for other productive purposes.

When you need cash to finance your farm operations, make a practice of discussing your requirements with the local Manager of The Royal Bank of Canada. He will be glad to explain the simple conditions under which such loans are made and the convenient methods available to you for repayment.

ANSWERS for Victory Gardeners

What Are Plant Lice
That I Hear So Much About?

Plant lice is the term used commonly when referring to aphids.
They are called plant lice because they cling to the plant like lice and live by sucking juices from the tender shoots, leaves and soft bark.
They remain practically stationary
after they once settle and give birth to young at the rate of 8 to 10 per day. These young are ready to do likewise in about two weeks.
You can see how they multiply.
Only the fact that nature destroys the aphids in huge quantities prevents their doing untold damage.

Where Do Plant Lice
Come From in the First Place?

Plant lice or aphids have a peculiar way of starting their first generation in the spring. They hatch from eggs which have been hidden away on trash or in other safe places over winter. The first generation that hatches can fly and spread about on favorite vegetation. The next generations are born without wings and continue on their host plant, giving birth to new generations.

You can begin to see why we recommended clearing up the garden late in the fall or very early in the spring, burning all trash, leaves and other material that might be used as a hiding place for aphid
eggs and other insect carry-overs.

Are All Garden Plants
Attacked by Plant Lice?

Just as there are many kinds of butterflies so there are many kinds of aphids—they are of different colors. Some are black, some rose colored, some green. There are aphids that attack almost every plant you will grow in the garden, and every aphid is a heavy eater, or we should say a heavy drinker, for he is a sap sucker and his food is taken in liquid form through his proboscis, is especially built for the purpose.

Is Aphid Damage
Really Serious?

Aphids can be terribly destructive. Scientists have counted in the neighborhood of 25,000 individual aphids on a single tomato plant. If you had 25,000 mosquitoes sitting on you night and day, constantly drawing blood, it would be a severe drain on your system. Your garden plants find this same drain in their life blood which is the sap.

Is There Any Other Damage
From Plant Lice?

The plant loses or aphid, as we have said, operates by sticking his snout into the tender tissues of any part of the plant he can penetrate for the purpose of withdrawing sap. There is in the saliva of the plant louse irritating substance
that will almost ruin a crop.

How Can Plant Lice
Be Controlled?

Black Leaf 40 is death to plant
lice, which it kills not only by contact but by fumes which arise underneath the leaves. The spray. You can spread all the lead arsenate you wish on the surface of the plant
and yet do no harm to plant lice.
They simply drill through and draw the fresh sap from beneath with their snouts. A contact spray is needed.

Better Farmmen

Just over a year ago, we drew the attention of our readers to the agricultural courses offered to farm boys
and young men in the three Prairie Provinces. We emphasized the wide variety of skills that are essential to successful farming, and pointed out that while many of them can be acquired on the farm, many others are developed much better and more quickly through special training at agricultural colleges and schools. If any reader doubts this statement, let him consult a graduate of the School of Agriculture, Olds, Alberta,
or one of the farm schools connected with the Universities of Sas-atchewan or Manitoba.

It is significant that discussions of post-war agriculture, by government bodies, almost without exception, emphasize the necessity of increasing the facilities for training prospective farmers. Many farm organizations have expressed similar views.

The young man who decides to devote his life to scientific research, teaching or extension must take a university degree. This usually involves Grade XI or Grade XII
entrance requirement and four university years extending from the end of September to the latter part of April. For various reasons, many farm boys will never consider enrolling in the degree course and, consequently, shorter, more practical courses are open to any farm boy 16 years or over in each of the Prairie Provinces. These shorter courses extend over two terms of about five months each.

Enquiries should be directed as follows:
Dean of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Dean of Agriculture, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, Sas-
atchewan.
Dean of Agriculture, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta.
Principal, School of Agriculture,
Olds, Alberta.

OT TAWA NEWS LETTER

The Mackenzie King Government is not going to be bound by the old order of things but "is going to look into the heart of the existing situations and discover where the fault lies."

This was the ringing declaration of Prime Minister King to parliament in speaking on the Family Allowances Bill. Though discussing only one measure, the Prime Minister made it clear that a new order for the Canadian people is being rapidly fashioned by the various laws already before Parliament or soon to be presented to it.
Mr. King said that 84 per cent of all Canadian children are maintained by less than one-fifth of the working population of the Dominion.

"Next to defending our country
from external foes," he asserted
"this one-fifth of our working population are performing the greatest of all national services by insuring the survival of the Nation.
It is only fair that the financial burden of this national service
should be shared by all."

Saying that higher wage earners received an allowance in income tax for dependent children, Mr.

King stated that the family allowance measure was a sincere attempt to "help remove existing injustices"

An interesting lesson in democracy goes on in the Princess Alice Barracks, Ottawa, where 800 RCAF airwomen make their home for the duration. They have a system of government in this barracks, patterned after the government of the Dominion. They elect their own councillors from the 18 wings or "constituencies" in the barracks
once a month, carrying out a full program of self-administration, which includes what they will have
for Sunday dinner, how many dances they will have each month.
The voters have definite class assessment what they want in privileges. Where a councillor fails to represent her constituents adequately,
she is recorded a want of confidence voted and must go to the country and seek re-election.

Officers' shirts, in army, navy & airforce, are tailored to colour and style standards, and are not available for civilian use.
Ration Book 5 is already being prepared in Canada with distribution scheduled for October.
